4 Things Every Parent Should Know Before Signing Up For Dance Classes

1. Hassle Free Shows

A year end show should focus on a wonderful experience for the student and parent. Additional show fees, rehearsals that do not run on time and lengthy performances are unpleasant for the entire family. At Dance Design School, we ensure that our June year end show is an event to look forward to, not to dread.

- We rent our costumes to you (ages 6 and up) at significant savings, so you don't have to buy a costume that could range from $80-$150 per dance! A teen dancer who takes several classes can pay hundreds in costume fees. Our rentals are a low cost alternative. All adjusting of our costumes is done by our seamstress at no additional charge to you.
- Each family receives 2 free tickets plus 1 free DVD of the performance. Additional tickets and DVDs are available for purchase.
- Shows are kept to a manageable time length, to 2 hours or less, so you don't a long wait to see your child. Rehearsals are well organized and always on time. We understand your time is important!

2. Limited Class Size

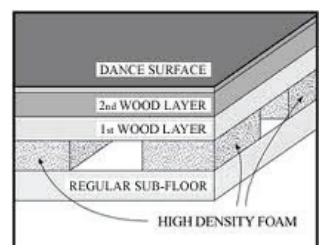

Teaching dance can be tricky when it comes to children. Attention span and physical readiness are specific to each age group and individual child. Appropriate dance movements are best taught by a trained professional dance teacher who understands the unique development of each child. In order for teachers to effectively teach each student we limit our class sizes.

We take pride in dance education that allows children to improve while having FUN! Our classes capture dancers imagination and creativity. Our class sizes have been specifically designed to ensure our students have the best dance experience possible while learning excellent technique and artistry. Dance Design School is the only school in the area that offers the Royal Academy of Dance curriculum - Internationally respected for age appropriate instruction that addresses each child's unique anatomical and psychological development. Each class level builds on the one before, ensuring that your child will be taught with a consistent approach each year.

3. Facilities

Dance combines music and movement. It is a high impact activity. Repetitive jumping on young bodies can harm the growth plates and lead to stress fractures. That is why Professional dance companies require 'floating' floors to preserve their dancers' physical well being.

- Our studios have professional caliber 'floating' floors that reduce fatigue and prevent injuries.
- Each studio has a stereo system with quality speakers, to limit the volume needed to hear clarity in the music.

4. Education vs. Competition/Recital

When looking for a studio, pick one that focuses on dance education, not on competitions or the recital. Many studios focus their class time on a single piece of choreography to be used in a dance competition or recital.

At Dance Design School we emphasize dance education. A properly trained student may perform many diverse choreographies with little rehearsal time. Rehearsals for our year end show do not begin until March, unlike the more common practice in other studios who start rehearsing in November. Dance education encourages individual work ethic and the satisfaction that comes from personal achievement rather than from a trophy. Competitions are expensive with little reward for the individual dancer.

5 Ways To Get The Most Out Of Your Music & Voice Lessons

1. How Young Is Too Young - Starting At The Right Age

When adults begin instrument lessons there are no concerns about focus or determination, but for children, starting at the right age is key to their successful learning. “The Sooner The Better” theory often backfires and can have a negative effect on the child. Children may become overwhelmed, frustrated and stop wanting to come for lessons. Starting at the right age will help ensure enjoyment, focus and a positive experience. The following are guidelines that will help you determine the optimal age for your child to start taking music lessons.

- Piano/Keyboard - We recommend beginning private lessons no earlier than age 5. Each child has a different focus and retention of material at this age, so speak with one of our teachers to help determine if your child is ready. Whenever your child decides to begin lessons, he/she will find the piano a fun and rewarding instrument.
- Guitar (Acoustic or Electric) - 8 years old is a good age to start guitar lessons, however it is never too late to begin this instrument. Playing the guitar takes strength in the fingertips in order to press the guitar strings hard enough to produce correct sound. Before the age of 8 children have small hands and may find playing the guitar uncomfortable or frustrating. We offer ukulele and violin lessons for children younger than age 8.
- Voice - 11 is the age voice experts suggest to begin private vocal coaching. Due to the physical nature of voice lessons (proper breathing techniques, development of the vocal chords and lung capacity), young children are not ready for the rigors of private vocal training.
- Younger Musicians - Starting music at a young age is shown to boost brain development and language skills. We offer a variety of group music lessons for students who are not yet ready for private lessons. For ages 0-3, we offer a Music Pups class which teaches rhythms, diverse song styles and an introduction to instruments. For ages 4-6, we offer a Music Adventures class which will teach the basics of piano. This class teaches kids to read music, rhythms, and piano playing, using fun kid games.

2. Group Classes vs. Private Lessons

When signing up for music or voice lessons, choosing the correct class format can make the difference between success and failure. Group classes work well for chorus singing, music theory, band or orchestra. Working as a group is a unique musical skill that can only be taught in a group class setting. However, when learning a specific instrument or teaching voice, private lessons allow for the greatest success in the quickest time.

3. Class Location

Children learn music best when the learning location is free of distractions. In a music school environment a student cannot be distracted by television, pets, ringing phones, siblings or the rhythms of home life. A half hour of lesson time per week at a professional music school location can produce better results than an ‘at home lesson’, since the only focus during lesson time is learning music.

4. Make Practicing Easier

As with anything, practice makes perfect. Difficulties between parents and music students can arise when there is not a system set up at home for practicing. Here are some ways to make practicing fun and stress free:

- Time - Set the same time everyday to practice, so it becomes part of your child’s daily routine.
- Repetition - For children 20-30 minutes can seem like eternity. Instead of setting a time frame, try asking your child to repeat their music piece 4 times or their scales 5 times. To a child, this gives a more manageable practice goal.
- Rewards - To make practice fun for your child, you may find encouragement, such as praise, stickers or small rewards like hot chocolate or a hug, can go a long way.

5. Use Recognized Teaching Materials With a Trained Professional

Our University trained teachers use excellent teaching books to help you or your child learn with the best possible results. Our teachers will guide you to a music book that will be appropriate for your level and learning style. For example, a 5 year old beginner piano student would learn differently than a beginner adult or experienced teenager. A teenage vocal student will enjoy different music styles than an adult. These books ensure that no important part of learning is inadvertently left out. Our library has been researched and is continually upgraded to make learning easier.

Have Fun! Giving the gift of music will last a lifetime. Remember the important part of music lessons is to enjoy the journey.
